

Curriculum Vitae

Verena Vescoli

Verena Vescoli, female, born in 1970, Italian citizen. Member of the Supervisory Board of the OSRAM Licht AG, current term of office until 2027.

Verena Vescoli has more than 25 years of industry experience in the field of sensor technology and microelectronics, with a focus on research and development. Since 2022, she has served as CTO at LEM International SA (Switzerland). From 2016 to 2022, she has been serving as Senior Vice President R&D at ams AG, Premstaetten (Austria). Earlier in her career, she held several positions at AVL List GmbH, Graz (Austria), where between 2008 and 2015 she worked as Project Manager, Product Manager and Strategic Program Manager in the emissions and fuel consumption measurement business.

Verena Vescoli studied Physics at Graz University of Technology / University of Graz and earned a PhD in Solid State Physics from ETH Zurich. In addition, she completed a DEA degree in Physics at the Université de Franche-Comté in Besançon. She has extensive expertise in technology, product and integrated software development for the consumer, computing, medical, industrial and automotive markets, as well as a broad international network of development, technology and academic research partners.

Other supervisory board mandates outside the ams OSRAM Group:

Member of the Supervisory Board and member of the R&D Committee of Sonion A/S, Denmark